VOL. VIII. RENO, WASHOE COUNTY, NEVADA, TUESDAY, JANUARY 6, 1880. NO. 85.

THE NORTHERN COUNTRY.

The Trade of Susanville--Agricultural Improvements--Fish and Game--Where the American Eagle Makes His Nest.

From our own Correspondent.

More goods are sold here than in any town in northern California. Although the population is only estimated at about 750 souls, over $400,000 in merchandise are sold here annualy. There ard five drygoods stores and grocery and hardware and grocery, four saloons, three hotels and boarding houses, two blacksmith and wagon shops, one paint shop, two printing and newspaper offices, two barber shops, five wash houses, three Chinese and two white, one telegraph line, connecting at Taylorville with the Western lines, three lines of stages, daily and weekly.

The northern country is almost wholly dependent on us for goods, and would be entirely so, if our county Fathers would build a few miles of road between here and Willow Creek Valley. Thousands of sheep are driven upfrom the lower country to feed on our exhaustless ranges through the summer to fatten, and then are delivered back again in the fall.

Large numbers of sage brush farms have been located here this season. All the sawmills have been busy sawing fencing which is hauled away almost as fast as sawed. Winter grain did well as far as tried on the new lands. This was an unusually dry season, however, ten bushels per acre were raised on dry sage land.

Should the Lassen county land and Flume company push the work started to tap Eagle Lake, Honey Lake valley will be the finest farming valley in state. The fruit crop was a failure this year, not over 5000 pounds being raised in the valley, where in former years over 100,000 have been shipped out of the county.

Eagle Lake, lying about ten miles north of here, is as fine a body of water as there is in the State, being about 60 miles in circumference and in form like an eagle with wings extended, from which and the great number of eagles around there, the lake derived its name. Game of all kinds is abundant, while the water is thick with very fine fish, among which are salmon trout, mullet of three different kinds, and a native white-fish. Commissioner B. B. Redding last wtnter forwarded to Sanders & Dow 120,000 Lake Michigan white-fish, which they successfully planted in the lake this summer. The same gentlemen have planted 1,000 Hudson River cat-fish in the waters of the county, a part of them being put in Honey and Eagle lakes. To date there has fallen 3.48 inches of rain and 5½ inches of snow since October 1. ADAM.

The Word "sozodont,"

Which has already become a household word, is derived from the Greek, and is composed of two words, Sozo and Odontes. "Sozo" translated, means to preserve, and "Odontes" the teeth—"SOZODONT" a preserver of the teeth. And it is true to its name. It beautifies and preserves the teeth, hardens and invigorates the gums, and corrects all impurities of the breath. The odor of this pure preparation is so delightful that it is a luxury to apply it. It is as harmless as water. Sold by druggists and perfumers. jan1-eod-1mo-d&w

OFFICES OF REASON.

Written for the GAZETTE by J. G. Lemmon.

No. 2. THE DIRECTOR OF RESEARCH.

Looking out of the windows of our mind in childhood, we see but little. Only the brilliant objects are noted. As we grow older we look closer and see more. Advancing we put this and that together; we combine, compare, deduce and project. This is the work of Intelligence, until then dormant in the human mind. Gradually superseding Instinct, which now relapses into inactivity, its characteristics soon become immeasurably different.

Under the direction of Intelligence the perceptions grow sharper and stronger until every cognizable thing is siezed and stored away, forming conceptions. But these conceptions are mere acquisitions, each a separate and useless fact. To make them into systems of related objects and thoughts, they must be arranged and classified, forming knowledge. This is done by Reason, the possession only, of man, and dormant until a late period in life, and through its deliberate and diligent action were formed the vast libraries of knowledge which the ancients have bequeathed to us. In time the limits of the powers of the perceptions, taxed as they were to the utmost, were reached, and assistance was demanded.

Reason now turned inventor and thousands of instruments were formed and speedily brought into use, multiplying the powers of the eye and the ear a thousand fold.

A constant increase of the powers of the mind caused a vast accumulation of results and the records of parchment were too numerous for the storehouses. Another limit was reached. Condensation of the records or books was necessary. The making of paper and the art of printing was invented and swiftly brought into use, affording the relief necessary, and the grandest strides of Intellect followed.

Other inventions produced revolution after revolution in the theories deduced from previous knowledge, until revolution is conceived to be the normal action of mind as well as matter.

The eye is the chief organ of the perceptives—the noblest of them all. The optic nerve without ramification, proceeds directly from the brain—not as do all the other nerves, from the medulla oblongata. There is great significance in this, as bearing upon the importance and independence of the organs of sight.

The eye is a most curious and intricate, yet purely mechanical organ. It is a nicely adjusted arrangement whereby one double convex lens, two fluids, a draw curtain, a painter's canvas, all manipulated by strings and pulleys, catch through the medium of light, images of external objects, and convey them to the mind.

By studying the mechanism of the eye closely and imitating its structure, man has invented five instruments to assist the eye, so powerful in their operation, and extensive in their revelations that they have been called the "Creative Eyes of Science." These creative eyes are the telescope, bringing universes down, and the microscope, bringing universes up to man's conception.

REVELATIONS OF THE TELESCOPE.

Let us recall a few of the astonishing revelations of the telescope. It has changed the conception of the earth from the flat, motionless, sun-encircled table which it seems to the unaided senses, into a round, sun-encircling globe. It has revealed the solar origin, the eternal age, the unity of plan, the harmony of motion and the vast distances of our sister planets. It has discovered systems of satellites encircling these planets in the same manner and direction. It has watched these satellites crossing the disk of their primaries and predicted within a few seconds any phase of such transit, centuries in advance of the occurrence.

It has lately resolved (a sub-revolution) the supposed solid rings of Saturn into millions of satellites. It has put the parent Sun himself into a crucible, as it were, and resolved him into a mass of molten minerals, each mineral distinguished by the kind of lines on the spectrum in the analysis of its light, and these minerals are shown to be identical with the primary elements of the earth and sister planets.

It has discovered and demonstrated the origin of our solar system from a mass of attenuated matter existing in space—the aggregation of this matter into globes and systems, upon a plan known as the Nebular Hypothesis, and believed to be the order of the creation of the universes of stars.

It has shorn the baleful comets of their fiery terrors, and proved them to be the merest ethereal films, too light to penetrate our atmosphere, if, out of a million chances to the contrary, one should approach the earth.

It has peered out at our neighboring stars and determined that, though the nearest is over 19,000,000,000 of miles distant from us, and each is undoubtedly as distant from any other, yet they, with our sun, constitute a compact cluster or universe in the form of a flat oval,—comprehended with the unassisted eye by noting the galaxy spanning our skies at night, seemingly a belt of starry sheen encircling the earth, but really an immense oval flattened universe of myriads of suns, in the south end of which our sun and his system are placed.

The telescope has reached through immesurable space and separated nebulous films of light into distinct and distant stars, the members of universes like our galaxy. It has fixed, with its keen eye, the exact position of the myriad stars of our firmament, and, in the course of a hundred years it has detected an infinitesimal apparent motion in a few of them, and therefrom deduced the amazing fact that our sun and system of planets with all their attendant satellites, are wheeling through space at an inconceivable velocity, around an immeasurably distant central sun, and on an orbit so vast that ages upon ages will be required to obtain the elements of an appreciable curve in the grand sweep.

At present this is the utmost and amazing extent of knowledge, but Reason, unbounded and unabashed, goes further. He declares that the planetary motions, so faithfully observed in the revolutions of satellites around their primaries, and of these planets on their vast orbits around the sun, and of the sun with his systems revolving on an inconceivable orbit around a central sun, holds true also in the economy of the universes of space, looking the merest specks of light, even with the aid of the telescope, but which are immense systems of suns arranged in uniform order and wheeling around a grand centre invisibly distant, of orbits immeasurably great, through cycles eternally long!

REVALATIONS OF THE MICROSCOPE.

Within a few years, in fact since the dawn of the present century, the microscope has been brought, by the ageney of reason, to exhibit its present marvelous power and usefulness. Its revelations in the examination of minute atoms have produced an entire revolution in the old theories of the origin and constitution of organic beings.

The magnifying lens, skillfully applied, reveals the astonishing fact that all forms of organic structure, both vegetable and animal, however diverse or complicated, are alike composed of similar microscopic cells called primordial retricles. These contain, some of them, air or water only; others are an infinitesimally minute globular atom called the cytoblast, which is the nucleus of life impulses, the earnest of new cells and of growth. Around it circulates a nourishing glutinous semi-fluid called protoplasm, which with the enclosed atom, the cytoblast, is ever in motion, flowing acting, combining, transforming, etc., so that cell life is an epitome of the general life of the plant or animal.

In fact, the vital energy of these primordial retricles is sufficient for independent, solitary existence, and such cells actually compose the minute plants, or rather algæ, known in the polar regions and on high peaks, as red snow, (botanically, protococcus, meaning the first cell.) Other one-celled organisms comprise the microscopic animalcules Volvox Amaba, and most of the beings forming the recently admitted fifth great class of animals—the Protozoa.

It is also lately discovered by the microscope that infinitesimally minute germs of both vegetable organisms called protophytes and of animal organisms called formerly infusoria, but lately, with more propriety, protozoa, in one stage of their existence, the encysted stage, are shriveled to atoms of such exceeding fineness that they are carried about in the air everywhere invisibly, so that it is impossible to conceive of a place, other than a perfect vacuum, where these microscopic germs may not be. And to this fact is traced the vastly important subject of disease caused by miasmatic infections or climatic conditions. In this particular it is claimed by many of our modern scientests that the microscope has developed more useful information than all the other mechanical inventions combined.

GENESIS OF PLANTS.

The materials and the operations employed in the pro-creation of plants and animals are seen by the eye of a microscope to be entirely analogous, or, as believed by some eminent scientists, to be exactly identical. In plants the grains of pollen, each a single cell containing minute molecules, exhibiting, some authors affirm, a tremulous motion, when transfered from the stamen to the pistil, are seen to be first speedily enlarged by imbibing the fluid of the stigma, then to form themselves into tubes, which sink into the stigma and extend within the style, however long, affording canals through which the animated molecules of the pollen grain travel to the ovary, seek out the ovules, they turning like sentient beings to favor the attack, penetrate by way of the small orifice or micropyle the two envelopes, traverse the glutinous protoplasm and establish themselves in (say some close observers) or upon, (according to most anthors) the embryo sac, when, at once the dormant ovule is thrilled with a life inpulse—is fertilized and becomes in due time a perfect seed—a stage of suspended life.

GENESIS OF ANIMALS.

The genesis of animals, more positively known from its plainer observation, differs mainly from that of plants in this particular only: other names are applied to the same things. But one of the most astonishing achievements of Reason is the discovery, by the aid of the microscope, that not insects and frogs alone undergo metamorphosis, but every other animal as well, including man, undiscovered until lately, because it occurs during pre-natal existence. This wonderful and instructive fact was suspected by philosophers long ago, but was not distinctly proved until our late lamented Agassiz, as the result of thirty years research, discovered that "there is a correspondence between the succession of fishes in geological times and the different stages of their growth in the egg." This correspondence was soon found to exist in all the other groups of animals, and the grand phenomenon of universal metamorphosis and similarity of all animal existence is now fully established.

METAMORPHOSIS.

Let us trace with a microscope the pre-natal history of an animal, correcting all optical illusions by the aid of Reason, and learn a suggestive lesson.

First, a microscopic molecule or zo-on enters (in the manner described in the genesis of plants) an infinitesimal cell or embryonic vesicle. The zo-on becomes the brain and nervous system; the cell, the body of the future animal. Nourished by the surrounding fluids, protoplasm, the zo-on begins its mysterious life career. The cell enlarges, numerous nucleatic bodies form within; all is in motion, revolving round and round. "At this stage of growth," says Agassiz, "the appearance of the egg bears a wonderful resemblance to our firmament of celestial spheres and systems. This is no fanciful simile," he adds, "it is simply true, and the idea cannot but suggest itself to the mind, that the thoughts which have been embodied in the universe are recalled and presented here." The cell or egg next divides, sub-divides, developes organs and limbs, assumes the character of each type of animals in their order, dropping the old and taking on the new at each stage, ever urged onward by its original impulse until it arrives at the theatre of its typical idea, when, assuming the habiliments clothing that idea, the animal is born, but retains through life vestiges of every one of its former states.

PRE-NATAL MAN.

How wonderful, surpassing the wildest romance, and how supuerlatively instructive is the pre-natal history of a human child—to-day sitting on its parent's knee, its features clothed with the exalted idea of humanity, and impressed with the probable proofs of angelic existence through eternity, yet bearing in its person and disposition vestiges revealing an analogy with, if not relationship to, every other animal on the earth.

Once an infinitesimal cell penetrated by a microscopic zoon; soon presenting an epitome of the orbs and systems of the universe; then a globular, ciliated or tentacled body; then a radiated, polyp-like substance; then resembling a pulpy, formless mollusk; then articulated with a lengthened body of an insect; next bearing the form like a fish with gills, fins and a two-celled heart; next that of a reptile with webbed feet, a caudal extremity and three celled heart; next a bird with wings, bill, a third eyelid and a four-celled heart complete; lastly a series of changes corresponding with every type of the five orders of mammalia; arriving at birth at the culminating apex of creation—the elaborated excellence, the concentrated energy, the perfected intelligence, the accepted monarch of the earth—a microcosm, a miracle, a model, a man.

How to Keep Healthy.

Dyspepsia is one of the greatest curses that flesh is heir to. It is the cause of three-fourths of the misery, and half the crimes of the world. It shortens thousands of lives and makes not only its victims but all with whom they come in contact miserable. The quickest and surest way to fasten this almost incurable disease upon a man is to feed him impure and adulterated food. Give him bread made from bad flour, raised with adulterated baking-powder and spread with rancid butter; tea loaded with iron filings, sweetened with sugar full of sand from some swamp, and such like things. But if you don't want dyspepsia go to J. K. Everett's and buy pure groceries fresh and sweet, from the best factories. He keeps only those goods which are known to be first-class, and any one who buys of him will get the worth of his money.

Election of Officers.

Reno Engine Co., No. 1 met at the Engine house last evening and elected the following officers for the ensuing six months: T. K. Hymers, President; S. H. Rhodes, Foreman; H. J. Thyes, First Assistant; Jack Frazer, Second Asisstant; C. Cuttois, First Engineer, who will appoint his own assistants; J. M. Flannagan, Secretary; S. M. Jamison, Treasurer. Trustees, T. K. Hymers, J. L. McFarlin, J. B. Williams and C. Knust. Quite a number of members are behind with dues and there is not the interest taken that should be by men who have property to be fought for in case of fire.

A Whole Family Burned to Death.

The medicine does not cauterize and is very pleasant. Sold by all druggists. jan8

T. F. Laycock says he saw the Willard troupe in the States, and that it is at the head of the list, Willard himself is the best in his line. The programme for to-morrow night is sufficiently varied to suit the hardest customer.

JEWELRY

$75.00 worth for $15.00,

—(AND A)—

Solid Abyssinian Gold Watch FREE! FREE!! FREE!!!

The above offer is genuine, although at first sight you would consider it impossible. We will explain: Since we first established our business here, March 1st, 1875, we have paid particular attention to the buying of Bankrupt and Auction lots of Jewelry and Watches often buying at as low as one-tenth their value, and in no instance have we paid over one-sixth the manufacturers' price. Since starting we have always been able to dispose of these goods in Chicago and through our regular customers throughout the country at nearly regular prices, as fast as we could procure them, but owing to the large number of failures among the heaviest dealers and manufacturers throughout this and other countries during the months of June, July and August (the time when the jewelry business is stagnant), we have now on hand an immense stock of the most desirable goods we have ever handled, and which we have bought at lower prices than ever before. In order to dispose of this entire stock in the most speedy manner possible, and make room for new ones which we shall continue to buy, we have hit upon the following novel plan:

We propose to give you a list of the most desirable of these goods, giving opposite each article its regular retail value, and sell to you at the rate of Five Dollars' worth for $1. For instance, on receipt of 50 cts. we will send you, POSTPAID, any article to the value of $2 50; on receipt of $1, articles to the value of $5, and so on throughout the entire list. Below we give a list of the most valuable of these goods.

Read What the Chicago Press Say of Us, And Send in Your Orders

The Sentinel, of Chicago, Sept. 9, says: "We call the attention of our readers to the new advertisement of the Inventors' Agency, No. 116 E. Washington street, Chicago. What the Inventors' Agency agrees to do, they will do. The Sentinel has advertised for the concern since its first publication, and we have yet to hear of the first complaint against it."

The Chicago Express, Sept. 3, says: "The attention of readers is called to the advertisement of 'The Inventors' Agency,' office and rooms located at 116 Washington St., Chicago. From personal inquiry and on the recommendation of the city press, we think our friends can do no better when wanting goods in that line. Give them a trial."

The American Stockman, Sept. 11, says: "We believe this institution perfectly sound and reponsible, and consequently persons need have no hesitation about sending for what they desire."

As to our responsibility we also refer you to the following firms: Blomgren Bros., 163 & 164 So. Clark St., Chicago, Ill.; Miller, Wagner & Umbdenstock, 119 So. Clark St. Chicago.

SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of Seminal Weakness or private disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure.

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty and sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuations of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and some small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
